New Easter Worship Series

I concluded our Lenten sermon series by thanking those in worship (online and in-person) for giving that area of discipleship the seriousness it deserved. Through the worship series, online book study, and our staff studying Ed Stetzer's book together as well, I know the Holy Spirit is producing some good, kingdom fruit as a result.

Depending on your perspective, you might think, "Oh well, all good things come to an end." Or, "Thank goodness. Can we talk about anything else?" There is good news as April brings Easter and a new sermon series. "Living in a Post-Resurrection World" is a Lectionary-based series that will begin on Easter Sunday, looking at the resurrection of Jesus, and will take us through Pentecost Sunday, when we look how that sparked the greatest example of transformed life. The world truly would never be the same. As we live in a society that is post-everything (postmodern, post-postmodern, post-Christian, post-truth), why is it important we live and worship in a post-resurrection world? How can the Holy Spirit work in and through us just like the early church? I am excited to get to the most hopeful message of all the Gospel and walk together through these weeks of Easter through Pentecost. Christ is risen and is at work in our everyday lives.

Scriptures for our April Sundays will be:

April 4th: Isaiah 25:6-9; Mark 16:1-8

April 11th: 1 John 1:1 – 2:2; John 20:19-31

April 18th: 1 John 3:1-7; Luke 24:36b-48

April 25th: Psalm 23; 1 John 3:16-24

Easter blessings!

Prayer and Praise from the Shideler`s

Can you believe it's already the middle of March?

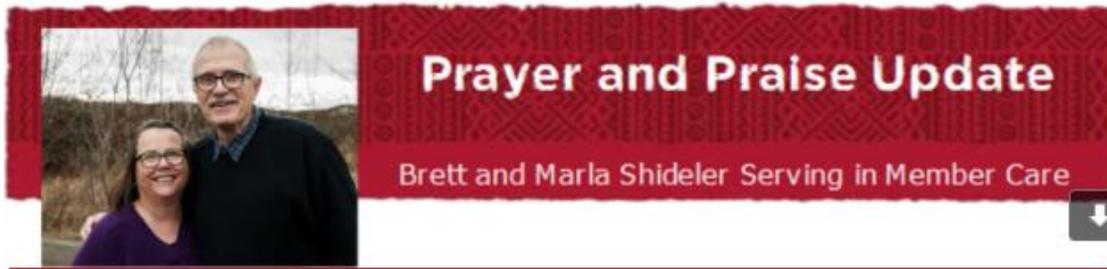

Here we are having just marked one year of COVID-19 and what a crazy year it's been.

Even in the midst of COVID, we are finding cause for gratitude. We praise God for:

- His peace in the midst of uncertainty;
- His enabling grace and strength as we served Wycliffe members who had to unexpectedly return to the US as COVID concerns grew in their countries of assignment;
- Online church service and Bible studies;
- YOU, our faithful ministry partners who have allowed us to continue serving in our Wycliffe ministries!

We are excited that Bible translation has continued even in the midst of a global pandemic! Praise God with us for these Scripture dedications that took place recently; pray that the Scriptures will be used and will result in transformed lives!

- Soja* New Testament in South Asia on Jan. 24, 2021. Population: 120,000. (*Name changed)
- Himauri* New Testament in South Asia on Jan. 31, 2021. Population: 400,000. (*Name changed)

- Logba New Testament in Ghana on Feb. 27, 2021. Population: 7,500.
- Nyangbo New Testament in Ghana on Feb. 28, 2021. Population: 6,400.

If you'd like to pray for us, here's what's going on for us in the coming weeks:

- Brett is heading to Orlando on 21 March for the first time in six months. His schedule is packed full of meetings. Please pray for stamina, good and restful sleep, good connections, clear communications, and that God would glorify himself in every meeting, dialogue, contact, and interaction.
- Brett will get to spend the weekend of 26-28 March in Tallahassee with Adam, Christina, and Edward. Please pray for good reconnection with them but especially with Edward, who's not yet three. How wonderful it will be to hug a grandkiddle again!
- Brett is traveling again only because our household has received our COVID vaccines. Please pray for protection and good health.
- Marla, who will remain in Washington with her dad while Brett's away, is rejoicing that several of the Wycliffe members she serves have been able to return to their countries of service. Yay! Please pray for continued stamina as she answers their questions and provides the resources they need as they transition.
- We are trying to plan a trip to visit you; there are many factors to consider as we plan. Please pray we would be led by the Holy Spirit as we submit our plans to His leading.

Thank you for standing with us in prayer and ministry. We are grateful!

Lord, you are my God; I will exalt you and praise your name, for in perfect faithfulness you have done wonderful things, things planned long ago.

MONTHLY OVERVIEW

This month, we are going to be talking about something that is high and wide and deep. Do you know what it is? Yes, it's the love of Jesus. Jesus' love for each of us is so wide and long and high and deep that we can't even measure it! And, we are going to have so much fun introducing this truth to our preschoolers this month!

We start the month with the best Sunday of the year—Easter! How exciting that we get to share the story of Easter with our youngest friends this month. Some of them will be hearing for the very first time that Jesus wants to be their friend forever. Yes! Jesus is alive, and He wants to be our friend forever!

We want to share the good news that Jesus is alive with our preschoolers all month long. We want them to hear over and over again that Jesus wants to be their friend forever. We want this foundational truth of Jesus' great love for them to live in each preschooler's heart.

GOD VIEW:

THE CONNECTION BETWEEN PEACE AND GOD'S CHARACTER, AS SHOWN THROUGH GOD'S BIG STORY

When Adam and Eve decided that their way was better than God's way and broke God's rule, they changed the relationship between God and His creation. When once everything and everyone could be in the presence of God, now we were at odds with God. God could have done anything He wanted, including wiping us out and starting over. But instead, God decided to make peace with us. Ultimately God did this through His Son, Jesus.

How Easter Gives Us Hope in the Midst of a Pandemic

By Sarah Anderson

I've got good news and bad news.

The bad news is: we're in the middle of a health crisis and global pandemic that has radically restructured our normal routines and ways of life that none of us have ever had to walk through before.

The good news is: we're all in it together. None of us have been here before—meaning we're all learning as we go, and we're co-journeymen in these unprecedented times.

But even in the camaraderie of knowing we are in this together, there are the questions.

- How do we fill our days?
- How do we get everything done that needs to get done?
- How do we maximize family time?
- How do we not drive each other crazy in the process?
- How do we instill faith in our kids, while also addressing the very real fear they (and we) are facing?

Don't overcomplicate the already complicated

As a parent of an eight and ten year old, these are the questions on repeat in my head—especially the last one. As an adult that struggles with fear and anxiety of my own, I worry about what my kids are not just picking up from the news, but from my own behaviors.

I wonder how much information is too much for them to handle. I debate over what to tell them and what to keep to myself. I find myself thinking I'm never doing it right for my kids, because it often feels like I am never doing it right for myself.

These were the things cycling around and around in my mind the past couple of weeks. Until one of the rare moments of quiet in my house—that never seems to empty of the people who live here anymore—I wondered if maybe we're over complicating things. Not that these aren't complicated times, but that maybe returning to the basics is the best thing we can do.

Between Christmas and Easter

As a country, the reality of COVID-19 really hit home for us in the time between Christmas and Easter. As I thought about the timing of it all, it didn't seem insignificant. In fact, it seemed like maybe there was meaning there that would help us, as a family, as parents to young kids, navigate the fear.

When I think of Christmas, I think of the message of Immanuel—God with us. I think of the enormity of the decision God made in sending divinity to live alongside humanity. I think of the normalness Jesus was born into—the mundane features of day to day life, but also the fear and unknowing and uncertainty of day-to-day life.

The message of Christmas—33 years before Jesus died—was that God saw us and wanted to be near us. And so He came. And He stayed. And for so many people who encountered Him in the 33 years he walked the Earth, it was His presence alongside them that changed things for them.

And then, just a couple of months later, we celebrate Easter.

A time we specifically draw attention to for the celebration of the resurrection of Jesus from the dead. But tucked into the message of Easter isn't simply the particular message of Jesus' life after death.

What Easter is about

Easter is the message of beauty from ashes. It's the message of the hardest things imaginable—yielding life when it seemed improbable, impossible.

It's the idea that the worst things are never the last things. That the story isn't over. That love wins. That good wins. That life is full of hurt and loss, of hard and uncertain, and that to feel those things and acknowledge those things isn't weak, but necessary.

And that even then, God meets us there with a message of life and hope and newness.

In other words, in a season marked by fear and loss, of uncertainty and difficulty, there are the two most fundamental messages of Christianity to draw comfort from:

God is with us. And the story isn't over.

Easter reminds us that God is with us

These days, as I parent my kids—and I coach myself day in day out—I keep these two messages front and center.

When faith shrinks in the face of fear, God is with us.

When loss overwhelms us, the story isn't over.

We may be new to parenting in the time of a pandemic. But what we are feeling isn't new to God. The messages He made sure humanity received are the messages we need more now than ever. In uncertain times, we have God's presence. In a new normal that shows no signs of changing, we have hope that the story isn't over, and beauty can come even from this.

Parenting in a pandemic raises a lot of questions. But it also raises to the forefront of our minds the two most foundational ideas of our faith.

When parenting our kids and wondering if we're doing it right, we can be sure we are at least doing something right when we recenter our family's dialogue around the things that never cease to be true, when everything else around us changes.

God is with us. And the story isn't over.
