

Be patient, then, brothers and sisters, until the Lord's coming. See how the farmer waits for the land to yield its valuable crop, patiently waiting for autumn and spring rains.

You too, be patient and stand firm, because the Lord's coming is near.

Happy Fall Y'all

Fall is my favorite season of the year. Football is back, obviously. The week of TX/ou often gives us that first great preview of fantastic weather. Formula 1 comes to Texas! State Fair food. And while the heat hasn't stopped some of us from grilling and smoking meat, it sure is nicer standing by a firebox when it isn't 108 outside.

We have some great things happening at FPCA this month to coincide with all this greatness. Adrian Rodriguez, our seminary apprentice, will get a chance to fill the pulpit. We will participate in the Faith and Blue weekend with guests from the Arlington Police Department in worship with us. We are offering police ride-alongs for current officers as a pilot program and hopefully expanding that to the congregation at large. Session and deacon teams will dream and submit their budget requests for 2023. Ok, maybe that doesn't sound exciting, but I'm looking forward to seeing what our teams want to do next year! October also means Trunk or Treat at FPCA. What will Chelsea and I dress up as this year?... We will conclude the month by launching our fall generosity campaign called Beyond. I don't want to give away any spoilers but there will be some great opportunities for prayer and spiritual growth. Stay tuned!

Blessings,

Pastor Chris

MONTHLY OVERVIEW

This month, we are talking about God's plans for us. The prophet Jeremiah shares the wonderful truth that God knows the plans He has for us. Even when we don't understand the plans and even when they are hard, we can still trust God because of Who God is, and God's plans are always a hole-in-one!

God loves us, and God keeps His promises. We can fully trust God's plans because God's plans are always best!

MONTHLY OVERVIEW

GOD VIEW:

THE CONNECTION BETWEEN GRIT AND GOD'S CHARACTER, AS SHOWN THROUGH GOD'S BIG STORY

As we continue our journey through God's Big Story, we take a closer look at the lives of Joseph and Moses. Both of these men trusted God through hard circumstances and would not give up. These are two heroes of the faith, and we hope to help kids see how their stories connect between Genesis and Exodus.

God has been faithful throughout history and has helped people get through and overcome incredible difficulties. God's Son, Jesus, endured the pain of the cross and death itself so that we could have a forever relationship with God. God gives us the Holy Spirit to empower us to keep going, even when life gets difficult.

WEEK ONE	BIBLE STORY Joseph Sold By Brothers and Joseph in Jail Genesis 37, 39-40	BOTTOM LINE Hold on because God is with you.

How to Read a Kid's Mind at Any Phase

by Parent Cue

“Read their mind” is just our way of saying, a parent should seek to understand what’s changing mentally and physically about their kids. Kids and teenagers don’t think like adults. So it’s the role of a parent is to translate what you want in a way they can understand. When you know how they think—they will hear what you say and know what to do.

Preschoolers think like an artist.

Artists experience the world through activities that stimulate the five senses. Preschoolers blend reality with imagination and learn through participation. A baby’s brain has more neurons than at any other time in life, and those neurons are forming two million synapses every second. In this phase, they are mildly aware of everything in their environment, and they take it all in at an unfathomable pace. Preschoolers learn experientially, through their senses, from someone who responds to them. In their world, there is no real distinction between what is real and what is imaginary. Like artists, they learn best when they can make it with their hands. This is why movement, music, and art are critical for learning in this phase.

Elementary-age kids think like a scientist.

Scientists understand the world through concrete evidence they can test repeatedly. Elementary-age kids discover how things work through repetition and clear application. Brain research suggests that during the elementary years (ages 4-10 or 11), kids learn information quickly and easily. But just because kids in this phase are eager to learn, it doesn’t mean they learn like adults. They’re still mostly concrete thinkers. They need repetition and clear application. Like a scientist, they learn best when they can observe something in their present environment. The more frequently a new concept can be connected to everyday experience, the better.

Middle schoolers think like an engineer.

Engineers solve problems by connecting concepts so they work together. Middle schoolers personalize abstract concepts by connecting ideas. Like their physical bodies, there is a “growth spurt” in the brain of a middle schooler. The brain overproduces neurons and synapses similar to the growing brain of a toddler. This period of rapid growth accounts for a middle schooler’s ability to think more abstractly, to understand multiple perspectives, and to think critically about themselves and others. It also means that instructions need to be simple and clear if you hope to be heard. Like an engineer, they learn best when they personalize an idea by connecting pieces of information. That’s why puzzles, patterns, and codes can be helpful for learning in this phase.

High schoolers think like a philosopher.

Philosophers seek to understand what is unseen and what cannot be measured. High schoolers want to discover meaning and learn best by processing out loud. A high schooler loses approximately one percent of the gray matter of their brain every year through a process called “pruning.” Pruning allows the brain to prioritize information to become flexible and efficient. With this new efficiency comes an increase in analytical thinking. But, the limbic system (risk-taking) is developing at a faster rate than the prefrontal cortex (regulating behavior). So risk and personal experience still govern behavior. Like a philosopher, they learn best through open debate, multiple perspectives, and applied reasoning. That's why self-expression and community are essential for learning in this phase.

Just remember, when you understand the way a kid's mind is changing, you stand a far better chance of identifying clues that help you know what they are thinking, conveying a message they can understand and laying a foundation for learning in the future.
